Mothers and daughters

(Director's statement)

"Mothers and daughters" is a short film that uncovers lives of 3 women and a girl, who have been living together, without men, for many years. Their lives took some complicated turns at some point and they ended up living on their own, widowed or divorced. What strikes me about these women and their story the most, is how deeply they know each other, love each other, and in a way even hate each other. Not only their personal characteristics, but also their live paths are very similar, which always made me think whether the destiny could also be inherited after our parents. That might be also a question for the youngest of them all - will she follow her mother's, grandmother's and great-grandmother's steps or will she be able to escape it?
